TWO NPA GIRLS ARE DEFINITELY BETTER THAN ONE!

Apocalyptic Bike Parts

The only things cooler than the cars in all of the Mad Max movies are the motorcycles! How can one forget the swooping fairings sported by Toecutter's gang and Officer Jim Goose on their Kawasakis? Mad Max Cars (MMC), a company that specializes in recreating vehicles seen in the Mad Max trilogy, recently bought Toecutterz.com, the first production company to offer the fairings. Using the original moldings from which the first line was created in the late '70s, MMC improved on production techniques — using vacuum-bagged, resin-infusion lamination for a strong and light fairing — and is taking advanced orders for another run of "Toecutterz." The dealer price is $1,400, with an MSRP of $1,600. If you have customers dying for retro parts that will help their bikes stand out, look no further than Toecutterz fairings. What A Way to Turn 30

Hey, if you're not doing anything between Nov. 14, 2010, and July 20, 2011, take a chance on Edelweiss's Discover Our Earth tour, the company's 30th anniversary ride that will guide riders through Europe, Africa, the Americas, Australia and Asia. Oh, you've got a shop to run? Well, pass the word along to your affluent clientele and convince them to go, and tell them you're their No. 1 source for outfitting a motorcycle to stand the rigors of global travel. The ride begins at Edelweiss headquarters in Austria, goes to France and then down to Dakar, Senegal. Riders will hop ship to Argentina next and then ride north to Los Angeles. Next comes a flight to and riding in Australia. Then Beijing before a westward journey back to Austria. Easy, right? ↵
